DETAILED ACTION

1. This written action is responding to the amendment dated 02/03/05.
2. Claims 1 and 10 are amended. Claims 6-8 and 15-17 are canceled.
3. Claims 1-5, 9-14, and 18 are pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1-5, 9-14, and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Dietl et al, US Publication No. 20020063760A1, hereinafter "Dietl" in view of Outwater, US Patent No. 6612494B1.
6. As per claims 1 and 10, Dietl discloses "A method for self-authenticating a marking agent cartridge, wherein said method is comprised of the steps of: installing an identification means on a marking agent cartridge" in (Para 0015); "installing said cartridge in a printer; automatically reading said identification means on said cartridge by said printer; determining if said cartridge is a counterfeit by automatically reading said identification means on said cartridge by said printer in order to obtain second information regarding said identification means; and comparing said first information of said identification means with said second information of said identification means" in

Art Unit: 2135

(Para 0017-0018); and "accepting/rejecting said cartridge by accepting said marking agent cartridge as being genuine if said first information of said identification means substantially matches said second information of said identification means; and rejecting said marking agent cartridge as being counterfeit if said first information of said identification means does not substantially match said second information of said identification means" in (Para 0019-0021).

However, Dietl is silent on "forwarding first information regarding said identification means to a database and compiling said first information in said database";

Nevertheless, Outwater discloses the "Product Authentication System" invention, which including a marking method similar to Dietl, such as using label and barcode (Col 5 lines 5-18). Outwater also teach of compiling the marking information to a database utilizing for authenticating a product (Figure 4, Col 5 lines 20-33, Col 7 lines 49-59, Col 8 line 53 to Col 9 line 10, and Col 9 lines 35-67). Therefore, it would have been obvious at the time of the invention was made for one having ordinary skill in the art to modify Dietl's invention to incorporate Outwater's method to provide a secure and reliable method to authenticate a cartridge when installing to a printer.

7. As per claims 2 and 11, Dietl discloses "The method, as in claims 1 and 10, wherein said marking agent is further comprised of: toner" in (Para 0017).

Art Unit: 2135

8. As per claims 3 and 12, Dietl discloses "The method, as in claims 1 and 10, wherein said marking agent is further comprised of: ink" in (Para 0017).

9. As per claims 4-5 and 13-14, Dietl discloses "The method, as in claims 1 and 10, wherein said identification means is further comprised of: a bar code and a label" in (Outwater, Col 5 lines 8-13).

10. As per claims 9 and 18, Dietl discloses "The method, as in claim 1". However, Dietl is silent on "the step of notifying a producer/supplier of said marking agent cartridge if said marking agent cartridge is rejected as being counterfeit". Nevertheless, Outwater does teach a step of notifying a field operator the result of the authentication in (Col 9 lines 63-67). Therefore, it would have been obvious at the time of the invention was made for one having ordinary skill in the art to modify Outwater's method to notify only when a comparison is not equal to provide a full control of an ink cartridge installed in the printer.
